Profile

Serving others is the priority and the main goal, regardless of the industry. Prior to COVID, my time as a Concert Technician allowed me to work with crowds of fans. Now, as a software developer, I hope to help clients realize their visions.

NSS is a six-month, full time software development program investing in local Nashville talent. The program focuses on HTML, CSS, JavaScript, JSON, React, C#, and .NET

BOREDOM BUSTER | FRONT END CAPSTONE

Boredom Buster is a Nashville specific events generator build with React JS, CSS, and JSON server. A user can enter four distinct criteria for an event they would like to experience, and the application will generate a location, address, and description for the user to accept or decline. Once accepted, the user will be able to leave a review of their experience

GIFYGRAM | GROUP PROJECT

My team of three worked with JavaScript, HTML, and CSS to build a web application that lets people post their favorite gifs. My role was to ensure that users could send direct messages to each other, and be notified when they have messages. Other team members added components for creating, editing, deleting, and favoriting post.
